whose fault is it if you have a little trouble holding this side-wise yearbook because it is unique? whose fault is it that the authors tried to project themselves into their work instead of remaining blandly objective? if the book is too liberal or if it has changed too much this year . . . if it does not stick to all the

mrs. adelaide pepmeier, who has dedicated most of her life to education, has been a highly respected member of the james monroe faculty for over a quarter of a century. with much love and admiration for a woman who has never gotten all the credit she deserves, the class of 1973 dedicates this yearbook to mrs. pepmeier.

"a meeting this friday?! jeezy-peezy!!" how many times did we say that? many times. it really wasn't that bad; working on the annual staff did have its lighter moments. there was the time we lost half the junior class pictures, and the creative idea of putting the freshmen names upside down. (we rejected that one on the basis of cruel and unusual punishment!) we thought about putting the ads first and the teachers last, but decided we had better keep the humor in the front of the book! once we discovered that we had two page 154's, and then we found out that we had forgotten to leave any room for the cheerleaders. (we did manage to squeeze them in somehow.) of course we did do some serious work — as little as possible. (if we had only been paid by the hour!) most important, though, is that we got the thing (annual) done and we hope you enjoy it as the rich memento of one of the best years of your life. right?!*#!

"if we leave out the cheerleaders we'll have room for the senior superlatives."

the man who came to dinner by moss hart and george s. kaufman

"the man who came to dinner," this year's senior play, was a smashing success. with cockroaches, a mummy case, a christmas tree, t.v. cameras, and a cast of thousands it had to be! under the direction of debby klein, a terrific cast cowered before and catered to a pompous, demanding sheridan whiteside.

perfectly in character, most individual mark gray poses a unique suggestion. this time it's to best personality kathryne warren and david beck, quietest beth rector and steve frieling, most intellectual melinda cox and russell marsh, and best all-around becky spratt and greg hooe. what does it all mean, mark? oh well, maybe absent most individual patty sloan knows.

a warm, lazy spring day and a bright, colorful geometric sculpture provide just the relaxing setting for most artistic barbara thomas and allen townsend (hey, how's that sprained ankle?) and most talented janet gregory and david philpott to discuss future triumphs. joining them are best dancers vernita johnson and ellsworth brooks, most soulful marty box, and most athletic marilue morris. absent are most soulful melvina johnson and most athletic gusty cooper.

this is julie snyder, reporting for whfc-tv in historic fredericksburg, virginia. we are here today to witness the christening of the yacht, the spirit of '73, purchased by multi-billionaire playboy, scott pastell. the spirit of '73 was named in honor of mr. pastell's graduating class of 1973, for whom he is having a two-week party.

witnessing the launch today are famous generals from the armed forces; lewis silver from the navy, leonard griffin from the army, glenn deane from the marines, and robert walker from the air force.

before the first guests arrive, we will introduce the people under whose capable hands we will be for the next two weeks. first, their is the ship's captain, steve whitaker and his first officer, terry stein. the other crew members, paul higgs, william nieman, and james lumpkin, are not to be seen because they are down in the engine room making up their own special batch of moonshine. in case anything goes wrong with the moonshine, we have firemen carrol burton and caryle herndon standing with hoses ready. along with myself we also have famous playboy photographer, earle copp, with bunnies kathy jordan, eddi steward, adelaide southerland and sharon whittaker.

some of the first guests to arrive are married ladies, pam payne, ellen noblin, joanne bourne, debbie sheldon, connie stokes and dot hart with their husbands. they are looking forward to the two-week cruise as a second honeymoon.

actress christi richie has cancelled all engagements just to be here. tagging faithfully behind her are manager frank thomas and agent selwyn payne, who are steadily beating off the wolves.

coming up the ramp row are those famous motown singers, the superettes, melvina johnson, joycelyn boxley and sylvia lewis.

well folks, i was just approached by marty box, dyer liddle and charlie dickenson attempting to sell me a new dodge from their box, liddle & dickenson showroom.

what's this dropping from the sky?! is it a bird? a fly? a flying saucer? no, it's hank helman and bobby zeb zooming in for a landing.

also here to help cover this reunion is free lance-star editor jean callahan and roaming staff, donna pitts, david beck, forest rubenstein, and pat easley.

approaching us now are those beautiful j.m. girls, debbie atkins, debbie lumpkin, marilyn reaves, anne mcmillan, and vernita johnson who have become international vogue models.

the well dressed gentlemen coming up the plank are stukie payne, jack bailey and bill saunders. they are living advertisements for the gentlemen jim's stores all around the country.

here comes mark gray, vernon hodge and todd harper who are on their way to england because as everyone knows, the grass is always greener on the other side. cousins teresa and johnny ventura are returning to italy to visit their wop ancestors.

jeff russell, harold seay, david farmer, and craig sheldon are on their way to russia to sell their blue jeans and army jackets to the communists.

now approaching the ramp is the famous b.s. gang, gilbert harris, butch brooks, gus andrews and aubry kenny with ship detective steve freiling and his faithful assistant, linda mann, close on their tail.

being escorted through the door is high society hostess, margaret goodloe, hanging on the arm of the president of the united states, greg hooe.

meanwhile, alex long and vice president kathy sloan, candidates for the presidency, are still fighting over women's lib, while n.o.w. leaders, becky klein, bev haney and jennifer miller try to "protect" her from the male chauvinist.

amid bunches of screaming, yelling, bratty kids we find poor, harassed teachers nancy taylor, and robin bowie. unfortunately they were unable to escape from their kids for even two weeks.

now there seems to be a commotion down at the end of the dock. cowboys randy harrington and greg o'toole are trying to force their way by the dock officials because they can't bear to be parted from their faithful steeds.

and for all the "deadbeats" we have morticians raymond johnson, perez richardson and wilbur lee aboard.

internal revenue agent david ridderhof is sneaking around scott pastel to see if he has listed all of his tax exemptions.

the cox clan has taken over the corporate state with melinda cox as big government, philip cox as big business and jay cox as big labor.

senators chance rawlings and marty grenn are seen trying to pas a $bill$ to congressmen glenn tillman and peter vandeventer.

richard t. self

f. craig shelton

patricia m. sloan

john painter and billy perkins are found playing doctors with nurses june taylor, jenniene leonarkis and winnie bergin.

janice davis and pat dameron are also around dispensing seasick pills and quick-over to needy patients.

coming up the steps are our teams of research scientists, butch weedon, joe o'connor and james street, who are looking for a cure for the common cold, while debbie durret, debbie reynolds and nancy sprow are still searching for a cream to wipe out freckles.

rolling in the dough is kevin cunningham who is appearing on the "baby huey comedy hour". also appearing in guest slots are jennifer mills, susie nolan, patty sloan, yvonne smith and lelia smith, munchkin stars of the new version of the wizard of oz.

trying to overcome almost insurmountable odds are the frantic people who will be trying to direct activities on the ship for the next two weeks, pam hitt, sandra pinkston, kim decatur, maxine miller, and joanne barlow.

walking along the deck we see artists kate norfleet, allen townsend, barbara thomas and dean harding painting the portraits of businessmen jeff lopo-mo, j.t. harrell, dwaine whittaker, and dennis locklin.

football pros for america's number 1 teams, david barbour, squeaky coleman, steve schmidt, and larry catlett are jogging up and down the stairs, while manager jimmy lee stands by holding relief — dr. scholl's foot powder.

basketball heros, gusty cooper, eric wright and johnny wharton are finding their most difficult competition with u.c.l.a.'s girls, debbie rosser and lynne parker.

tennis pros, pam davis, lou thornton, rob boyd and stan payne are playing hard with the score, love-15; which proves the old saying that if you can't be with the one you love; love the one you're with.

best selling author linda steigleder has joined the two-week cruise to promote her book, "the blueing of the u.s.a."

in one corner of the ship we find u.n. ambassador, ute röber, from germany, discussing theology with ship's chaplain, jay hearne. also adding to the discussion are college professors, pat soden, reggie brown and beth rector. but someone is missing and we discover history professor, s. m. newman, chasing librarian, marcia mastin, all around the book shelves, trying to keep out of their way are linda oates and kathryn warren who've come in to trade their "brides" magazines for some of dr. spock's good advice.

motel executives, tommy snook, kenny tennison and terry snellings are accompanied by their barbie doll secretaries, leslie caputo, joanie dickenson, and connie snellings.

practicing up for next year's olympics are gymnasts, marilue morris and shelia cheek, hoping to top olga korbut's record.

punching his way toward the olympic games is boxer, jennings taylor, with manager, james green, around to see that he remains physically fit.

women have taken over afro-sheen with executives, diane worrell, pat dorsey, and velma ellis.

our beautifying agents aboard the ship are valerie rumuley, patricia conway, and sandra seal.

malpractice suits are being filed against vets janet gregory and yum smoot for operating without the permission of the next of kin. they are being defended by capable lawyers, beth beale and david dawson.

and still trying to lure people to their couches are psychiatrists, becky spratt and bonita habron.

as we go downstairs, we find liz johnson, susan cadow, barbara jones and susan elwell busy decorating for tonight's party. glancing toward the corner we find bartenders, butch bowler and bill farmer "sampling" their own exotic mixtures. (let's hope there's still some left for tonight, boys.)

practicing their can-can routine for tonight's entertainment are showgirls laura viets, june allen, betty pinker, wanda wheeler, judy carrol, pam cooper and sue ellis.

tonight's band, j.j. jock and co., are setting up equipment on stage. lead singer, j.j. jock (alias bobby dunn) is warming up by doing his vocal scales. accompanying him on piano is brian waple, on drums — marvin seay, on trombone — russell marsh and richard self on guitar. lead trumpet for chicago, david philpot, is here to lend his assistance to the band.

other performers for tonight are vocalists, martha lippincott, ruthan o'toole and victor pierson.

comedian ed alley and master of ceremonies tom fogarty, are sitting at the bar exchanging the latest jokes.

well, that covers about everyone except patsy shutte and joanne sprow, who are absent as usual.

class history

in 1961, we began our ascent up the path of "educational doldrums". split into four fredericksburg schools, the class of 1973 has been moved more than any previous class. while kevin cunningham was "king of the jungle" at walker-grant, scott pastell spent his time chasing girls at montfort. this was also the time bev haney used her finger as a lollipop. having been initiated into the fruit break ritual in first grade, marcia mastin and j. t. harrell made good use of it in the second grade. this was about the time becky klein acquired a new pair of eyeglasses — pink with tiny poodles.

in third grade we saw lewis silver spend his whole first day crying. it was also the year glenn deane got the award for being the #1 flute player and leonard edmonds on his drums. third grade was also a year of exposure to great literary works, such as raggedy ann, raggedy andy, raggedy ann and raggedy andy and the camel wrinkled knee, and stewart little.

sylvia lewis was already doing her usual thing of flirting with guys such as raymond johnson, david barbour and perez richardson. while gilbert harris and jimmy greene were in one corner playing with race cars, the other corner contained marty box and joycelyn boxley "doing their thing".

in the fourth grade we were introduced to virginia history by making the rounds of our beloved historical fredericksburg. it was also the year b. j. elling-ton offered melinda cox a ring (she turned it down). white bands were big, too, as well as the "army" — especially with carroll burton.

lafayette students were seen watching space flights on educational t.v. they learned french from the lady with the moving but silent lips. they even had a "live" french teacher for a short time, but only melinda cox could remember the french numbers past 13.

montfort was developing at that time their set of "class clowns" made up of randy harrington, john painter, john ventura and john wharton. meanwhile, debbie rosser was crying because she got separated from the rest of miss goodloe's class and had to go to mrs. robinson's class instead.

in the fifth grade jennifer miller nick-named dean harding, woody wood pecker. around this time nancy sprow left walker grant for "bigger and better things" — maury elementary (?). she was followed by selwyn payne and some of his crew: robert walker, raymond johnson, jennings taylor and joanne sprow. when melvina johnson and sylvia lewis split for lafayette, things were rather quiet. of course someone had to take care of business; so adelaide southerland, vernita johnson, glenn deane and reggie brown volunteered for the job. remember at maury when mrs. goebel's room had a strange odor? mrs. goebel's substitute, mrs. caincrow, made everyone take off their shoes to see if they had clean socks.

at lafayette, we saw something you don't see every day in fifth grade — someone kissing paul bigoney in the cloakroom. right, marcia? fifth grade we saw julie snyder come to lafayette and during a french class, joanne bourne was deported bodily from the room because she would not say french along with the teacher. at maury, they were holding their breath — mike wholey passed out.

in sixth grade, carlyle herndon sat on a misplaced tack. it was janice davis' first year at lafayette and already she and tony house had a thing going. melinda cox thought it was because janice was so much more "developed".

at that time, kim decatur began wearing hose and pam cooper overcame her dread of dogs. "pea-flicking" was a common occurrence and marvin seay was assigned the name of pink elephant (for a good reason no doubt). meanwhile, mrs. martin at maury was showing her meaningful source of discipline — the paddle! this was also the first experience of changing classes.

terry i. snellings

in 1967 lafayette students came to maury for their seventh grade education. this was the first year for male teachers, with kenny poates and bobby knighton. we then saw a romance going on between a student and a certain science teacher. right, kathy? this was the year that all the girls wore different colored hose. remember when nancy taylor wore green, when everyone else wore white?

1968 brought all the members of the class of '73 together for the first time. with stan payne as s.c.a. president, the walker grant middle school was formed. let's not forget the talent show. bev haney and bob beckwith sang a few songs. we don't think ellsworth brooks will ever let victor pierson forget "by the time i get to phoenix"!

in ninth grade we found ourselves at james monroe. we elected greg hooe president; michael coleman, veep.; ruthann o'toole secretary and janet gregory treasurer. mrs. pappandreou talked mr. boley into giving us two bake sales because our class was so big, and because we were broke.

in tenth grade, or our sophomore year, an old friend from the middle school joined us — mr. garnett. this was the year that forty of us were brought into the national honor society.

in our junior year, our largest project was the junior-senior prom. with the theme of "aquarius" the music was provided by "the greater experience". many juniors were learning about loneliness from mr. massey. this year was also the first year for english electives.

now proud seniors, needing money for a banquet, we looked to the drama department. "the man who came to dinner" was the play they came up with, and they had a full house the first night. bobby dunn and patti sloan headed the cast and crew of forty. we now leave j.m., with melinda cox as valedictorian and bev haney not far behind as salutatorian, to enter the big people's world (where they shoot real bullets).

the senior assembly this year was a program of enormous variety. the multi-talented seniors presented several solo singers, a band, a barbershop quartet, and many skits dealing with various humorous or not so humorous topics. the class prophecy was read, and many seniors were recognized for their achievements during the year. the seniors also announced the recipient of the yearbook dedication, mrs. pepmeier. perhaps the most enjoyable part of the assembly was the dismissal of all seniors following the program.

the basilisk's main objective is to encourage creative writing among the students, and to compile these yearly into a book. all of the efforts of this organization are aimed towards the publishing of the basilisk. the club also participates in a literary magazine exchange with other schools.

a broken bottle of a well known, expensive perfume —
can cause such a stench, that six aisles of a crowded store are totally deserted —

a "perfect" child dances in a perfect sun-gold field — a close examination cannot reveal the worm which rots away his heart —
a dirty word shouted from the back of a bus
against race, creed, or color —

one nation "indivisible"
— divide — divided as a man who looks within himself, and sees many men

(the myriad possibilities of what could be — science fiction, fact and fantasy) this man dares to ask "what if?"

imaginings and impressions bounce, ricochet and rattle in a hollow mind.

the many women, men and things that could be — — stories to be told songs to be sung —

all waiting for one magic touch — or word —

to be made real . . .

black studies club

the black studies club provides the students with an opportunity to study the history, progress, and development of the black race. through the use of bulletin boards, announcements, and showcase displays, the entire school is educated in this subject area. during the first year of their operation, the black studies club gave boxes of food to two needy families, and gave a donation to the local sickle cell anemia association.

ecology club

the ecology club has broken all the traditional rules of a high school organization. there are no dues, no parliamentary procedure, nor fund raising. the members share a common interest in the quality of life within their environment. the emphasis for the year was on the beautification of the school grounds and on student awareness of the pollution crisis in their world. in the beginning of the year, the trash cans around the outside of the building took on a bright yellow appearance. this was done in a group effort to stimulate student participation in an anti-litter campaign. the major project of the club this year was spring planting, during which many young evergreen seedlings were planted on the grounds.

the question that baffled this year's debators was "resolved: that governmental financial support for all public elementary and secondary education in the united states should be provided exclusively by the federal government." the debate team had a rather slow start, which may have been due in part to the personality conflict between the parties of the negative team, none other than russell and alex!?! after many weeks of diligent practice however, the team finally did debate in the commonwealth district tournament, which was held at jm.

girls' tennis

the girls' tennis team was a pleasant surprise among spring sports, finishing with a winning 4-3 record. although playing most of their matches in unfavorable weather conditions, the girls came through to upset long-established teams. come on boys tennis team, the girls are one winning season up on you!!!

one-act play

last minute preparations

this year's one-act play was a delightful comedy by molière, "sganarelle." the play, which originally was presented as the school's entry in the district forensic contest, was also presented in the "sights and sounds" program.

the big day!

children's play

children at local elementary schools were delighted and enthralled by this year's children's play production, "many moons." the play, which is based on a story by james thurber, concerns a young princess who wants the moon, and the unusual way in which the problem was solved. there were some very memorable things about the production: the king learned his lines the day before the performance, the royal nurse had great difficulty learning to shake a thermometer, and the goldsmith's daughter became known as "the royal hooker," for some strange reason. the smiling faces and happy giggles of the audiences, though, were proof that the show was successful.

this year the juniors chose comic book heroes as their theme. the gym was decorated with large murals of wonder woman, snoopy, casper, and many others. "marsh" provided the music, and pat dameron was crowned queen.

sights
sounds

sights and sounds, james monroe's showcase of the fine arts, was one of the best in years. the entire gym was filled with art work ranging from batiks, weavings, and ink drawings to collages. in the art room people were dabbled with fluorescent paint. also, student-made movies were shown. the drama department presented "sganarelle", a one-act play by moliere. the chorus sang a wide selection of songs, both popular and religious. the large james monroe concert band entertained the audience with many selections. both the chorus and band had several soloists.

the moment mrs. tillman set off the security alarm at dallas, we knew we were in for a great trip. our excursion took us to the well-known cities of london, oxford, and stratford. during our stay in london we did quite a bit of sightseeing, and we attended three plays. after a not-so-pleasant voyage on a ferry to calais, france, we headed for paris where we spent a day. although our schedule was busy, we managed to find some time for a few unscheduled adventures. between the english pubs, the paris latrines, and the midnight jokes about "un franc," we have many tales to tell. it's still hard for us to grasp the meaning of all the places we've seen and all the people we've met, but somehow we all sense we've shared something very important and unique.
